

CV Dr. Martin Enderle

Chief Executive Officer, Scout24 Group

Dr. Martin Enderle is Chief Executive Officer (CEO) of the Scout24 Group and in addition Senior Vice President P&I Digital Services at Deutsche Telekom AG.

Martin Enderle joined Deutsche Telekom in 2001 as Senior Vice President International Business at T-Online. Under his leadership, the group's mobile services division expanded substantially through organic growth and acquisitions, including the milestone take-over of the Scout24 Group with its brands AutoScout24, ImmobilienScout24, FriendScout24, JobScout24 and FinanceScout24.

Having overseen the successful integration of Scout24, Martin Enderle assumed the role as CEO of this unit, developing it into its current market-leading position. From 2008 till beginning 2010, he was also CEO of Immobilienscout24. Present in 18 countries and visited by over eight million unique users per month Scout24 today is one of the leading online companies in Europe.

Martin Enderle started his career as a research fellow in mathematics at Hanover University, spent five years with McKinsey & Company as a consultant specializing in the automotive and telecommunications industries, and founded the German operations of the international venture capital firm Speed Ventures before joining Deutsche Telekom.

Today, Dr. Martin Enderle is one of the most highly profiled executives and experts in the field of internet services and new media.

Born in 1965, the keen piano player and arts lover lives in Munich.